

Game of TUTA

The game of the TUTA is a throwing game, with easy rules. This game is played in most of the town in our region, especially during the local festivities.

To play this game you need a playing field, a TUTA, two TEJOS and a COIN

The playing field has 28 meters of length, plus the space that the players use to throw called “pato”.

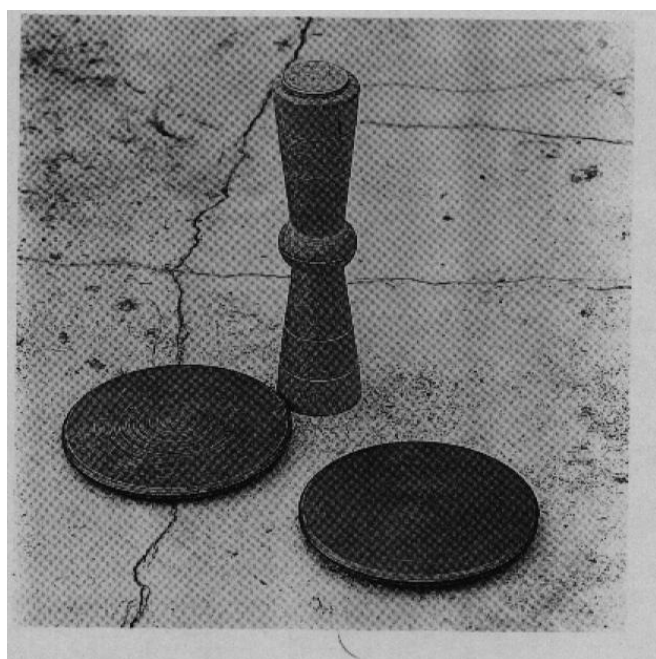

Usually the alley is earth beaten but you can play in other kind of surfaces and it has two meters of wide. There are two bands with one meter of wide on both sides of the alley that are the security zone for the spectators and the other players.

The TUTA is placed 22 meters from the “pato” or throwing zone and six meters behind the TUTA we have to put a board to stop the TEJO.

The TUTA must be made of good wood (oak tree or holm oak tree) and must have engraved. It is about 16 centimeters of high and its diameter at the bases is 35 mm and in the middle 40 mm.

Los TEJOS (the discs you have to throw) are made of iron and its diameter is 100 mm and its thickness goes from 5 to 10 mm from the external part to the middle. Its weight is 0.5 kilogrammes.

The COIN that you have to put on the top of the TUTA is 25 mm of diameter, 2 mm of thickness and 10 grammes of weight, but you can use a 1 euro coin or a two euro coin.

You can play single game or you can play in teams. The teams can be made up of two or four players.

How to play

After to put the TUTA on its correct place with the COIN on the top. Each player has to throw the TEJOS from the throwing zone and try to hit the TUTA.

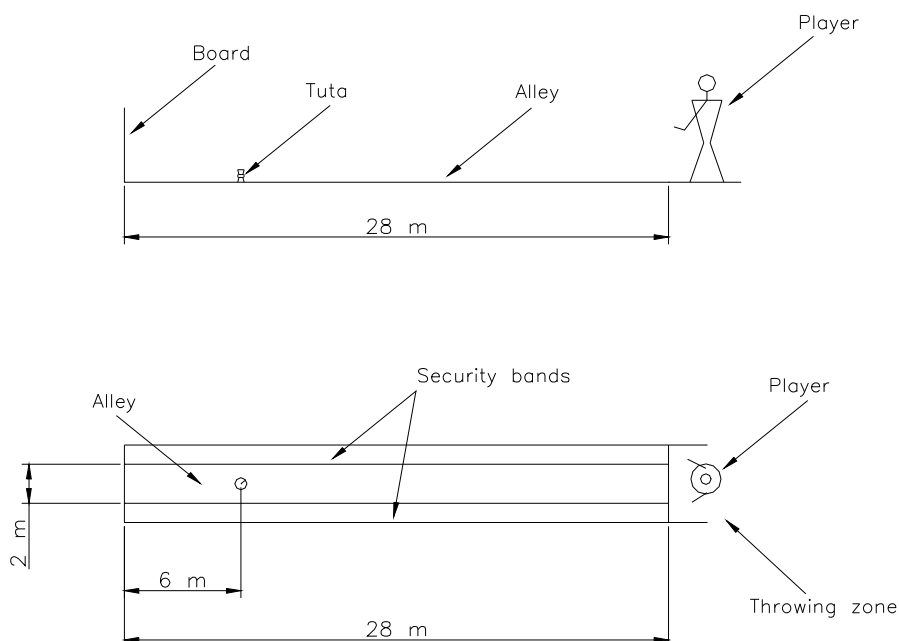

If the TEJO hit the TUTA you got one point. Then you have to measure the distance between the three elements of the game.

When the TEJO hit the TUTA, and the distance between the COIN and the TEJO is shorter than the distance between the TEJO and the TUTA, you got one more point.

When the first player throw his/her TEJOS is the turn for the next player and so on until the last player.

Usually each player has 15 turns and the winner is the player or the teams that have got the highest number of points.

The skills you need to play the game are strength to throw the TEJOS and accuracy to hit the TUTA. It is a funny game but it is not very easy to hit the TUTA. It is important the way you throw the TEJO to get a good direction.
